REVIEW DECADE UNDER OPERATION OF CONSTITUTION

Meet in Second Reunion Here.

C. V. MEREDITH NEW PRESIDENT

Members Realize Radical Law of Eleven Years Ago Is Now Conservative - Hill Carter Registers Himself as Reactionary-Distinguished Men Speak.

Fifty of the members of the Virrinia Constitutional Convention of 1901-1902 met in their second reunion in this city yesterday. They reopened the debates of a dozen years ago, renewed old friendships, discussed the effects their work had upon the life of the Commonwealth, talked not a litof the Commonwealth, taiked not a lit-tle of its relation to the future, and had a royal good time. A dinner at the Jefferson Hotel last night was the crowning feature, for among the speakers were men whose public ser-vices have made their names household words in this State.

At a business meeting held during the afternoon the Association of Surthe afternoon the Association of Survivors of the Virginia Constitutional Convention made a clean sweep of its officers. All the old officials declined re-election. As Henry C. Stuart, the retiring president, said, at the end of his incumbency of eleven years, the question of third terms was settled test November. last November.

Charles V. Meredith, of Richmond, was elected president; former Attorney-General William A. Anderson, of Rockbridge, vice-president, and James W. Gordon, of Richmond, secretary and treasurer. The retiring officers were Henry C. Stuart, Alexander Hamilton, of Petersburg, and J. Thompson Brown, of Bedford.

State Officials Hindered Him.
A feature of the speaking was the ticism made by Congressman Andrew Jackson Montague of the handi-caps felt by him as Governor in trying , put the new Constitution in effect, ecause of the "recalcitrancy of almost the complete official life of the State."

to please the people.

"When the committee on legislation of the convention met, we were confronted with a committee from street car employes, who said they had to work ten hours a day, and wanted to work six hours, and desired it put in for a patent for it was learned to work six hours, and desired it put in the Constitution. Somebody suggested that we split the difference, but at last we took the matter under advisement, and nothing was ever done. If that convention were meeting, convention were meeting now, I sup-pose it would be in order to be pro-gressive and to say that six hours a day should be enough for an employe, cay should be enough for an employe, leaving nothing to individual liberty. "Nor could I ever imagine myself marching under the banner of 'Gen-eral' Rosalie Jones. In short, I am a reactionary."

Following him, Alexander Hamilton said he was a conservative in convensaid he was a conservative in conven-tion times, and is one to-day.

Novel Decorations.

The dinner took place in the Flem-ish room at the Jefferson, where the tables were beautifully decorated with roses and carnations. On the centre table were two sweetmeat automobiles, cach about a foot long, a triumph of the confectioner's art, filled with cakes, and complete with actually burning headlights and sidelights. At this table, with Toastmaster Henry C. Stuart, sat Governor Mann, Major William A. Anderson, Mayor George Ainstead of the Careral English A vers John Stew. lle. General Rufus A. Ayers, John Stewart Bryan, Captain R. S. Parks, former Senator A. T. Lincoln, Judge James Keith, Lieutenant-Governor J. Taylor

Ellyson and Judge R. R. Prentis.

Governor Mann responded to the toast "Virginia." He commented on the way Mr. Stuart, in introducing him, had stressed the idea that he (the Governor) is now on the fourth and final lap of his incumbency of the executive chair. The allusion captured lection would have meant.

John Shewart Bryan reminded the members of the convention that much water has flown by since that body adjourned, and that times have changed issues have arisen which were not even considered in those days—in fact, had not arisen. Mrs. Wilson Photographed in Her Brand-New Gown

The gown was in the new Elton green shade, a handsome brocade trimmed with white lace, and was most becoming to the dainty coloring and pretty soft hair of the first lady of the land. It was made in simple but effective fashion, with dead skirt, but without a suga draped skirt, but without a suggestion of the extreme slashed modes that have prevailed in Washington society.

Mrs. Wilson was unaccompanied by either daughter or maid. She requested the photographer not to pose her artificially, but wished a diguified, graceful pose, and showed considerable artistic skill in several of the suggestions she made as

La Follette Sees President, Washington, March 14.—Senator La Follette made his first call to-night at the White House in more than three years. He was the invited guest of President Wilson, and spent almost an hour with him in his study in the executive mansion. He would make no statement as to the purpose of his visit, but it has been an open secret for days that he was expected to discuss matters of legislation with the President. President Wilson is known to hold the progressive Republican Senator in high regard. He watched his career for many years as Governor of Wis-consin, and as United States Senator. He referred to Mr. La Follette in terms of praise in many of his speeches during the campaign for the presidency It was generally understood that he wished especially to get the views of chement of to-day.
